Beyond Fear

How wisdom & courage turn into leadership and spark transformation.

🔥 DIE KEYNOTE IN A NUTSHELL

In this special keynote, Karola Sakotnik, architect of positive futures, takes the audience on an inspiring journey through time.

A grandmother celebrates her 100th birthday in 2065. She recounts – with humour, depth and clarity – the 2020s: an era marked by fear, crises and upheaval. She names the hurdles we had to overcome back then – climate crisis, digitalisation, social division – and how we nevertheless managed to successfully shape a social, technological and ecological transformation.

✅ KEY TAKEAWAYS

- How to transform fear into curiosity and thus re-install the ability to act
- Guidance on actively shaping visions of the future instead of passively consuming them
- Understanding the connection between emotion, intellect and shared creativity
- Encouragement to take responsibility and enable innovation
- Tangible Storytelling as a tool for transformation

BEST FOR

- Summits, conferences and Events tackling all around future and/or transformation
- Executive & Leadership Summits
- Innovation & Culture Conferences
- HR, People & Transformation Events
- Organisations and Corporates in Change and Transformation
- Teams, who want to get out of pressure-and-fear-mode, to open spaces for options and possibilities

ABOUT KAROLA SAKOTNIK, MAS MBA

Karola Sakotnik is a keynote speaker, systemic coach and cultural transformation expert. Her background is rooted in both business and the performing arts & theatre creation. On the one hand, she is an executive with international teams, and on the other, she is the mastermind behind clowning for war and torture survivors in international refugee camps, or culture and entertainment on cruise ships – she designs and implements award-winning worlds of experience.

Today, she supports executives, organisations and companies in shaping the future. She always brings a good mix of clarity, courage and a human approach, as well as the creation of spaces of possibility.

Her keynotes are characterised by astonishing and unusual thought leadership as well as theatrical stage experience. She inspires and goes into depth – always appealing to genuine leadership, with a systemic background and a pinch of humour. Out of conviction, she also organises TEDx Graz.

The special added value:

This keynote differs from traditional lectures because it does not explain the future, but rather brings it to life. The audience becomes part of a jointly created narrative that combines emotion, creativity and insight. The result is a collective vision of the future that provides lasting inspiration
